Can re-origin help with my condition?

Conditions and Effectiveness · https://www.re-origin.com/support/can-re-origin-help-with-my-condition re-origin is designed to support recovery by addressing the root cause of many chronic symptoms — an overactive limbic system and nervous system.

Because of this, it may help with a wide range of conditions, particularly those linked to stress sensitivity and nervous system dysregulation.

If your specific condition isn’t listed on our conditions page that’s okay, the list isn’t exhaustive. What matters most is whether your symptoms are influenced by the nervous system.

While we’re not able to diagnose or offer medical advice, we provide tools and techniques that support nervous system regulation. Many members with different symptoms and diagnoses have found benefit from the program.

How do I know if my symptoms are related to the nervous system?

Many people who benefit from re-origin experience symptoms that:

fluctuate or change over time
worsen with stress or fear have no clear medical cause involve heightened sensitivity (e.g. pain, fatigue, anxiety)

If this resonates, nervous system regulation may be relevant, but we always recommend ruling out medical causes first.

Can you tell me if this will work for my specific condition?

We’re not able to assess or diagnose individual cases. However, because the program focuses on underlying nervous system patterns rather than specific diagnoses, it can support a wide range of symptoms.