Yes, the re-origin community is active and consistently engaged.

Members regularly share updates, ask questions, and support one another, so there’s an ongoing sense of connection rather than a quiet or inactive space. Many people find that when they post, they receive thoughtful responses and encouragement from others who understand what they’re going through.

In addition to everyday conversations, there are structured ways to stay involved, including community discussions, Progress Pals, and monthly challenges all designed to keep the space dynamic and supportive.

You can engage as much or as little as you like, but there is always activity there when you need it.

Will people respond if I post?

What if I join and don’t see much activity right away?
