What is neuroplasticity?

General FAQs and Resources · https://www.re-origin.com/support/what-is-neuroplasticity

Neuroplasticity is the brain’s natural ability to reorganize itself and make new synaptic connections, allowing for new changes to occur. These changes can range from individual neural pathways making new connections to systematic changes like cortical remapping, where entire brain regions adjust their functions in response to new demands or damage.